Remember Bill Gates or Mark Zuckerberg, Microsoft and Facebook inventors? That is the type of thing I dream to do; create something exotic and innovative that would leave the world in awe. If I could invent something new, I would create an app, an irresistible app that no one would not have.

The app would be named 'Discover Eyes'. It will not be just an app but also a game. A game for all ages; suitable for providing interest to adults yet remaining completely child friendly. Recall the innocence and wonder of childhood? That is the basis of Discover Eyes; to bring back the amazing joy and innocence once known.

This task will not be easy to achieve as it requires further editing, more money and production. To find a company or any personnel that would invest in it will be the dicey part, if not the impossible one! But in as much as the task has its difficulties, it can also be solved with proper planning.

For one, I would need to be consistent and persuasive. I cannot take 'no' for an answer. I would have to be hard working and cooperative. Most producers may not invest in my app due to fear of losing money, but I will not give up. Giving up is the first acceptance of defeat so I refuse to do it.

There would be many fore deals on the game. It would induce positivity on individuals as the entire is based on that perspective. It would enable adults feel like children again and help them relive moments when they were truly happy. It would put the world at ease as the main feature of the app is to foster relief and relaxation, amongst others.

To establish it in the media and get the public to use it would be difficult. People are hard to please nowadays and are also frightened to try new things. A technique I can use is full refund of money spent on the game if not enjoyed. This would encourage people to get it.

More ways could be to spread the word. People that used and enjoyed the app could talk about their experience to others, giving the app a good name and appearance. I, myself, would go round spreading news about a stunning new game that just reached the stores. I will converse on its good effects and persuade people to use it.

Discover Eyes is an astonishing game based on innocence and freedom of childhood. It is seeing the world through a child's eyes and discovering a whole new world, requiring just your imagination. The game itself is a wonder and marvellously created, only good things can come from it. It can kill boredom, relieve stress, facilitate relaxation and even boost imagination. It will be suitably designed for all ages.

If I could invent something new, it would be something spectacular, leaving the world gobsmacked; it will be Discover Eyes!
