IF I COULD INVENT SOMETHING NEW

The world we know of today advances and develops so rapidly. Every day, new things are being created or invented; things that can do what has never been done before, to help develop our world. If I were to develop or help my country or the world I would create a mind scanner. A mind scanner is like a truth ray, but my mind scanner will be in the form of an app in the phone. Once you snap that person, then tap the face of the person, the app would tell you exactly what the person is thinking of.

First of all, the mind scanner could be helpful in many ways, especially to families. Mind scanner would put an end to problems like divorce, cheat, etc. If the members of the family know about it, they will not try to cheat on one another because they know if they do cheat, their partner could easily scan their mind and catch them. The mind scanner would help the family to grow in love as they know that if they lie that they would always be caught and so, there is no need for lying. The mind scanner could help you find the right person to marry – someone who really loves you.

In schools – students will learn to abide by the rules because they know if they default, they would be caught just by taking a picture of them. Students will stop telling lies because they know that there would be no need for telling lies since they could easily be caught. Some students tend to fake sickness just to stop schooling but as they know there is an invention like a mind scanner, they would stop faking their health issues and then always tell the truth and continue schooling. A mind scanner would definitely help to instill discipline to the lives of students.

The mind scanner could also be helpful to our country Nigeria, as it would help voters, to a large extent, determine the most sincere candidates to be voted for. As we know, politicians of now tend to rig election because they know that if they do, they would never be caught and if they are caught, it would be so hard to prove them wrong. Then, with the ability of my mind scanner, we could just take a picture of the politician and simply determine if his manifesto is true or not, and if that which he really wants to do for Nigerians are true of him.

In conclusion, a mind scanner will be one of the best inventions ever. It would change the world and Nigeria and everyone in the world. With my mind scanner's ability to know the truth and know exactly what someone else is thinking in his mind, trust issues would be resolved perpetually. The world, Nigeria, schools and families would finally be at peace.
