IF I COULD INVENT SOMETHING NEW

Goodday, if I had the chance to invent something new, that will be a machine that can teleport people from one place to another. Firstly, the machine will look like a big rectangular box made of glass, the machine will have a control in form of a tablet and the people outside operating it will write the destination and the person will teleport to his destination.

The machine will be placed around the world, so that a person can be able to go anywhere. The door will automatically open for you, and automatically close. It will also have all the names of places on earth in the control (tablet), all you have to do is search for your destination and select and then the person in the machine will appear where his/ her destination is. The machine will need electricity to work, the machine will be in form of glass from top to bottom.

The machine will be able to carry minimum of two people and maximum of four people, that is if they are going to the same place. The tablet of the machine will also be programmed to listen to human voice and does what it says, instead of using your fingers. You can just tell it your destination and it will connect with the machine and you will arrive at your destination safely. Another feature of the machine is that two of the machines can be able to teleport two people or more at the same time.

For example, if someone from Nigeria is going to America and someone from America going to Nigeria at that same moment, it will make the teleportation faster. The machine can not carry more four people or the machine will malfunction and have some issues. The machine will be made with authentic, qualitative and long-lasting materials, so that the machine will last for as long as possible. If I have the chance of inventing these machine, I will name it TELEPORTER. If the teleporter will come to live it will really be great one, and it can save more time for people.

The teleporter can be useful to society and everyone, from the way I picture it, if the teleporter was real it can save more time than road transportation, air plane etc. The teleporter will really be useful and very important.
