If I could invent something new

In this current technological era, there are different inventions. But the thing is imagine inventing something new. Some people brag there are relatives of some famous inventors but why not invent something your self.

If some thing is worth doing its worth doing well. The reason some inventions are successful is because of the self-esteem of the inventors.

What I want to invent is a laptop that turns into a tablet/iPad . It happens when you turn on the laptop and go to Windows ,press settings and go to the device change. Then turn the keyboard round and use a case to cover the keyboard. The device will become touch screen and the formation of the apps will be as if you're on a tablet or iPad.

They say necessity is the mother of invention. That is why I have a plan B. The second thing I want to invent is a self-working household appliances. I always imagine if the air conditioner, fan, television set, or electric iron works automatically. All what to do is to put a microchip or all those chips they put in robots and there it works.

In conclusion, whether you are the relative of an inventor, always plan independently.
