IF I COULD INVENT SOMETHING NEW

If I could invent something new, what will it be? what will it represent? what could I possibly gain from it? will it be noticed as a new way of living or will it not?

If I could invent something new, it should be the representative of the strongest human force that is practically irresistible the human flesh. It should be something that people will crave for and will come from different parts of the globe just to have a sample of, something that people could actually call "tasty", like a new kind of food.

If I could invent something new, it should not only speak creation but innovation to all people, both young and old, like a miniature A.I assistant, to assist both your parents with their work and other parental issues and your grandparents to help assist them in their day to day activities.

If I could invent something new, it should be something in relative with education, like a self-automated learning device filled with enough information you need to become an educated and balanced individual in life.

If I could invent something new, it should be publicized, it should be something that will encourage the youth of our generation to follow their dreams and to strive for accuracy in all they do, like a kind of simulator that helps you to have both learning your course of study or fill your head with tips for your upcoming tests or pop quizzes.

If I could invent something new, it should be an escape route from boredom, it should be the gateway to laughs and new trends to giveaway to the people around us, like an entertainment system just bigger than both YouTube or Tiktok.

If I could invent something new, it should be a brand new perspective that could change the mind of different influencers all over the globe, it could also be a path to new ideas to support an entire nation or something to change the old corruptive ways of a nation and exchange it with a brand new developed and sustainable way.
