

IF I COULD INVENT SOMETHING NEW

RIFAYA AL-JOHANI, OCEAN CREST SCHOOL, YEAR 9

If I ever had the opportunity to discover a new invention, it would be a device that looks similar to contact lens or eye glasses which will generate responses that can manipulate the outcome of the upcoming situation to whatever we like and can answer any questions. Suppose that if a question is inquired to us that upon answering it can cause unnecessary problems, my innovation can originate answers that can either lead to avoiding the unwanted trouble or whatever circumstances we want to take place. This discovery can actually be effective to whoever is utilizing it.

Firstly, it can assist an individual to escape from unessential fights and distress. It will generate answers which can make a person happy, delighted, excited and many more, no matter how offensive the enquirer can feel when the question is answered. Furthermore, this device can help in responding to questions that require a solution to unravel.

In other words, if there is a problem, solutions that will be provided can give us an insight on how to overcome that issue and prevent it. It can also be a cause of worry as one can perceive this invention to be futile. Nevertheless, I reckon that it can be of great essence to whom the gadget is used. To illustrate, the globe is experiencing problems such as global warming, world hunger, corruption and many more. To subjugate these problems, we need pragmatic solutions to cease the existence of these issues and that's where my innovation comes handy. However, this device can also be dangerous and deadly when fallen on the hands of people who have the bad intention of misusing it. My innovation can disclose answers to questions that can cause mayhem and difficulties to other lives. Furthermore, it can make people lazy. For instance, if so many people are utilizing this gadget, then it can show them solutions to questions, which will make them execute it with ease and then life would become easy. Nonetheless, I have the perfect idea of how to overcome these disadvantages. My creation wouldn't be available to people easily; they would have to fill out forms and legalities in order to be able to use it. This device would mostly be available to individuals who are tasked to solve problems related to any country, area or dealing with any disease. In addition, this device can also reveal the names of those who would use it with the right motives as it can provide multiple answers to any question.

To summarize what has been written so far, if I had the ability to create something, it would be a gadget that will produce answers to any questions and control the upcoming situation. It can help escape from unnecessary trouble and help humans to solve global issues. Although it has its flaws, it can also provide solutions on how to overcome those drawbacks.
