IF I COULD INVENT SOMTHING NEW

If we truly did live in a fantasy world, where dreams are easily granted and we could do anything that we wanted. There are many things I would like to invent. Some selfish wishes but it cannot be helped after all I am simply human.. Although, there is one thing I would like to invent more than anything at all. A type of medicine to cure all diseases. This may not be what most people would go after since it is usually not a person's first train of thought. It is not like I have ever experienced loss or a major kind of grief due to a loved one's illness.

In all honesty, where this idea originated from is unbeknownst to me. I believe that inventions are not things that should be made to satisfy oneself, I believe inventions are made to better someone's life. The number of people and animals who are reaching out for help but nobody is there to give it to them is why my choice of invention is an all-disease-curing medicine. Although if I were to invent that, there are many greedy filths on this earth that would take advantage of it to make it out of even Elon Musks price range. My second benefit of this medicine is that anybody can afford it, no matter how poor or how rich.

The setbacks are that even if this so-called medicine were to exist, if nobody has made it yet, then the materials to make it are rarer than painite. I am not so engulfed in fantasies that I have completely lost all common sense. My frustrations are because of all the people who die a year or cannot enjoy their life due to sickness. It saddens me to think that while I am out here living my life to the fullest, there are thousands of people that have been stuck in a hospital bed for decades.

Sometimes medicine is too expensive and the insurance company refuses to cover all of it. Other times, the cure simply does not exist. Although I am not smart enough nor do I have any of the materials needed to create the medicine that they need. I truly do wish that one day it will exist. As small of a chance that will happen, it is enough for me to hope for someone to make it. As technology advances so will the world of medicine. Even if I cant be the one to reach out and help, there will always be someone to take on my ambition. Perhaps this world truly may not be as cruel as I think.
